

Reproduction of Ordnance Survey mapping for educational purposes

November 2001

1 Introduction

1.1 All educational establishments should be aware of the existence of Crown copyright in Ordnance Survey and Ordnance Survey-based mapping.

1.2 Universities and educational establishments (excluding independent and voluntary schools) not funded by their local authority must obtain a licence from us before any copying of our mapping takes place.

1.3 Independent and voluntary schools no longer need to purchase a licence, but are bound by the rules and terms as laid out at 1.4 and 3.

1.4 Copies can be made for teaching purposes only, either as teaching aids for lecturers, projects or exams set for students.

1.5 We have invested a great deal in our products. Our copyright policies must protect this investment and make sure we get a fair financial return from others using these products. So our products contain fingerprinting and coding protection techniques.

1.6 Ordnance Survey-based mapping, for example, commercial publications A-Z®, Goad Plans, Estate Publications, George Philip's and

G.I. Barnett's are also subject to Crown copyright. You must obtain prior permission of the other publisher in order to reproduce this mapping.

2 Getting a licence

2.1 To apply for a licence please contact Copyright Licensing – see paragraph 6 for details.

2.2 You will be issued with a licence where an annual fee is paid to cover copying maps for educational use.

3 Rules and terms of the licence

3.1 The licence covers:

- making copies of our material for teaching and/or educational purposes only;
- 10 x 200 cm² bitmap images for your school or college web site;
- using our digital map data for teaching and/or educational purposes only; and
- the use of mapping in a school brochure or prospectus to show location of the school.

3.2 The licence does not cover:

- any work intended for sale or distribution to the public or any outside organisation;
- the transfer of our material onto computer media for other purposes; or
- digitising and scanning of our mapping.

3.3 The activities at 3.2 are covered by separate rules and terms; please contact Copyright Licensing for more information.

4 Academic research

We will not charge royalties for using our maps and data in publications produced only for academic research and not for commercial gain, provided:

- the results of the research are to be disseminated widely and without delay within the academic community and freely in the public domain;
- the publication is not for commercial gain or part of normal publishing business;
- the total area of mapping in a publication does not exceed A3 (1 250 cm²); and
- the following copyright acknowledgement is shown on or near each map image:

© Crown copyright Ordnance Survey. All rights reserved.

We will not consider it to be academic research where the results will be held for the exclusive information or use of the research sponsor or sponsors or in any way restricted from access to the academic community or the wider public. In cases of doubt please refer to Copyright Licensing; see phone number in paragraph 6.

5 Licence fees

5.1 The annual licence fees fall into four bands as follows:

Independent and voluntary schools for pupils up to 16 years old No fee
(including independent schools with a sixth form)

Establishments for students 16 to 18 years old £88 + VAT

Establishments for students over 18 years old £145 + VAT

Edina®/Digimap® £300 + VAT

5.2 You have to pay VAT on all our licence fees.

5.3 The annual licence fees quoted above are subject to annual adjustment.
